

Aprilian, Rizki Dwika

RESEARCH AREA: Urban History, Nature & Infrastructure, Urban Governance

Department of Architecture,
College of Design and Engineering,
National University of Singapore,
4 Architecture Drive, Singapore
117566

Email: rizki.dwika@u.nus.edu

Personal Website

Google Scholar

ResearchGate

LinkedIn

ORCID

Rizki Dwika Aprilian (Riz) is a PhD student in the Department of Architecture at NUS, under the supervision of Dr. Dorothy Tang. His research focuses on urban history and theory, examining the intersections of nature, culture, and the politics of infrastructure across riverine and coastal landscapes in Southeast Asian cities.

He is also a member of ICOMOS Indonesia and currently serves as Deputy Director of TENGGA Foundation, based in Jakarta. Previously, he earned a Bachelor of Interior Architecture (S.Ars.) from Universitas Indonesia in 2015 and a Master of Architecture (M.Ars.) in History, Theory and Criticism of Architecture from Institut Teknologi Bandung, Indonesia, in 2021.

Over the past decade, he has taught and conducted research on urbanism, urban heritage, and vernacular landscapes in Indonesia. Drawing on archival research, spatial analysis, and fieldwork, his work traces the historical trajectories of urban transformation across the region amid rapid urbanization and climate change.