Class of 1988 Chemical Engineering 21st Anniversary Reunion Dinner

Time flies when one is having a good time rejoicing over an evening of celebration.

The Class of 1988 Chemical Engineering (above) held a 21st Anniversary Reunion Dinner on 17 January 2009.

Over dinner at the NUS Society Kent Ridge Guild House, former campus mates and lecturers caught up on old times. Old photos of the four memorable years on campus were compiled into a slide show for all alumni to relive the fond memories of their yesteryears.

Altogether, some 24 classmates of the cohort of 41 contactable classmates, and another eight teaching and administration staff from the Department of Chemical and Biomolecular Engineering, were present to celebrate the joyous occasion.

The evening celebration also offered a great opportunity for alumni to show that together, they can do more for the Department by making a monthly or one-time financial contribution, individually or jointly, to the setting up of financial aids for needy Chemical Engineering students especially under such challenging times.

Alumni went home with fond memories while looking forward excitedly to the next reunion dinner celebration. Response to the organising committee, which did a marvelous job of reuniting everyone, was so encouraging that the committee members were urged to serve for another term!
