

FTIR Spectrometer

FTIR spectrometer is used for measuring how samples transmit, absorb, scatter, or reflect EM radiation in the IR (Infra-Red) range, typically in mid-IR.

It can be used for determining which molecular groups are present in an organic compound, for example.

Measurement range: 400cm^{-1} to 6000cm^{-1}